Red Cross Aids Families of Servicemen

One of the many services of the Marion County Chapter of the American Red Cross is counseling and aiding financially the families of service men. In the above picture is shown Mrs. U. A. Nystrom, a home service worker, discussing plans for medical care with the wife of a soldier stationed overseas.

This is one of a series of stories telling about some of the services of the Marion county chapter of the American Red Cross. The series is published to aid in Marion county's part in the annual fund campaign. Sixty-five per cent of the contribution will remain in Marion county to carry on the chapter's work.

The wife of a soldier stationed overseas contacted the home service department, Marion County Chapter, American Red Cross for financial assistance for medical care for herself. The only income the wife has is the family allowance received from the government and from the serviceman for herself and two children.

The home service worker discussed family resources with the wife and learned that the wife is unable to pay for medical care from her family allowance benefits and that there are no family resources that can be utilized for this medical care. Because of limited income home service has assumed responsibility for the wife's medical care.

Home service gives financial assistance from chapter funds on the basis of need for emergency and special and non-reoccurring needs when other resources are not available.

Financial assistance is also given to dependents of servicemen on the basis of need for basic maintenance during the temporary period pending the first receipt of family allowance, allotment or officers' pay, and during period when such payments as may be due are delayed or interrupted.

Other Services

Citizenship, settlement or legal residence is not a prerequisite for assistance from home service. Home service program for servicemen and their dependents also includes offering a counseling service for personal and family problems. This service is an intricate part of all other functions of home service.

Referral services is also offered by advising the serviceman and his dependents of agencies in the community offering services appropriate to their needs; explaining the services offered by such agencies and planning with the appropriate agencies and the applicant for consideration of the problem.

Assisting the serviceman and his dependents in presenting applications for family allowance, allotments and other government

2 KILLED, 200 HURT AS PURDUE BLEACHERS FALL

CHIEF BLAME FOR PALESTINE GIVEN TRUMAN

Bevin Says Immigration Demand Wrecked Chances for Peace.

By The Associated Press

LONDON, Feb. 25 — Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin charged today that President Truman wrecked negotiations for a peaceful settlement of the Palestine problem by calling for immediate admission of 100,000 Jews to the Holy Land during the U. S. congressional election campaign last fall.

Opening a house of commons debate on the Holy Land question, Bevin declared there was still a chance of settling it outside the United Nations.

Bevin said he was engaged in crucial negotiations with Jews and Arabs last October.

"At that stage," he said, "things looked more hopeful and there was a feeling—I don't think I over estimate it—that I had the right approach at last, but what happened?

"I went back to the Paris peace conference and the next day—I think it was Atonement day or one special day of the Jewish religion—the prime minister telephoned me at midnight and told me the President of the United States was going to issue another statement on this 100,000."

Bevin Pauses

Bevin paused and then said slowly:

"I think the country and the world ought to know this: I went next morning to the secretary of state, Mr. Byrnes, and told him how far I had got the day before, and that I believed we were on the road, if only they would leave us alone.

"I begged that the statement should not be issued, but I was told that if it was not issued by Mr. Truman a competitive statement would be issued by Mr. (Thomas E.) Dewey."

"President Truman early in October cabled Prime Minister Attlee his belief that "substantial immigration into Palestine cannot await a solution to the Palestine problem and that it should begin at once."

He promised U. S. assistance to an immigration movement and pledged American support for any future "workable solution" for the Jews and Arabs of Palestine. Speaking strongly in favor of a partition plan put forward by the Jewish agency, the President urged that the Jews be given a largely independent state "in an adequate area of Palestine," and that Britain agree to issue immediately certificates for 100,000 Jewish immigrants. (The request obviously angered the British at that time.)

'Can't Work Problem"

Amid cries of "hear hear" from other members of parliament, Bevin declared:

"I really must point out that in international affairs I cannot settle things if my problem is to be made the subject of local elections."

When the cheering died down, he added:

"I hope I am not saying anything to cause bad feeling in the United States, but I feel so intense about this. When you have got a vexed problem with a thousand years of different religions, it has got to be handled with the greatest detail and the greatest care. x x x They can lead to civil war before you know where you are."

Despite his protests, Bevin said, Truman's statement was issued, "and the whole thing was spoiled."

Still Have Chance

The foreign secretary said "there is a chance of a statement yet, if people will come off their arbitrary position, without going to the United Nations."

"I am still open to try," he declared. But he added:

"If it was only a question of alleviating Europe of 100,000 Jews, I believe a settlement could be found x x x. Unfortunately, that is not the position. From the Zionist point of view, 100,000 is only a beginning. The Jewish agency talks in terms of millions."

Earlier, after saying he had persuaded the Arabs of Palestine to accept Jewish immigrants at the rate of 18,000 a year since 1946, Bevin said:

Could Have Done More

"We might have been able to have done more for the Jews and increased this rate at that time (1946) if the bitterness of feeling had not been increased by American pressure for the immediate decision on 100,000."

Interrupted by cheers, he said he had "done all I can to promote the best possible relations with

Gas Crises Eased by Partial Lifting of Restrictions Today

Partial relief from the natural gas shortage here came today when C. E. Sechrist, Marion manager of the Ohio Fuel Gas Co. announced the lifting of restrictions on small industries and commercial establishments. Companies with stand-by equipment, however, were asked to continue its use.

Curtailment of the gas supply forced the closing of one Marion plant last night and several others were reported operating on emergency equipment.

The Cory Rubber Co. of 310 Windsor street, manufacturer of rubber gloves, shut down last night and was closed today, stopping work for approximately 24 employes there. Fred C. Cory, president of the company, said in spite of the lifting of the gas restrictions, his plant would remain closed today.

The Universal Cooler division of the International Detroit Corp. began using its emergency supply of bottle gas at 6 p. m. last night but reported it has a sufficient supply of bottle gas to last through the emergency and neither production nor employment was curtailed.

Foundries of the Commercial Steel Casting Co. and the Alloy Cast Steel Co. were operating on stand-by burners today.

The current gas shortage has been due to sub-normal temperatures in Marion and other parts of Ohio, causing an increased demand for gas for heating purposes. Little change in the weather was predicted for tomorrow. Forecast was for snow flurries tonight and Wednesday and slightly colder in the northern portions of the state Wednesday. Temperatures at noon today were 28 degrees, rising from a low of 22 this morning. Yesterday's high was 28 and a half-inch of snow was reported. High temperature a year ago was 33 and low was 16.

Mercury Rise Brings Gas Shortage Relief

By The Associated Press

A temperature rise averaging about 12 degrees brought harried gas companies some relief from shortages today, and the weatherman promised the remainder of the week would continue only moderately cold in Ohio.

George Mindling, Columbus meteorologist, said near-normal temperatures were in prospect for northern Ohio until Sunday, and somewhat lower than normal mercury readings would occur in the southern part of the state.

In Columbus, Cleveland and Akron, Tuesday morning temperatures were 26 degrees above zero, compared with 12 Monday morning. In Cincinnati the mercury was up from 15 to 27 for the 24-hour period; in Toledo from 12 to 22 and in Dayton from 10 to 24.

The fuel shortages in the state resulted from a series of cold waves which weatherman George Mindling at Columbus said would make February come "very close to averaging 25 above"—the capital's coldest February since 1936.

Senate Group O.K.'s Increase In Rent Ceiling

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Feb. 25 — A senate banking subcommittee today approved a bill authorizing a 10 per cent increase in present ceilings on rents.

The bill would end federal rent controls next Dec. 31 and remove the administration of controls from the office of price administration.

The controls would be vested in the courts except where the states chose to establish their own enforcement.

Senator Buck (R-Del), chairman of the subcommittee, told reporters the bill would be ready to lay before the full committee in about a week. He said the five-man group split 3 to 2 on many provisions.

Buck outlined these provisions of the legislation:

1. Permission to increase rents 10 per cent over the ceilings of last Dec. 31.

2. Decontrol of new housing and accommodations which were not rented between Feb. 1, 1946, and Jan. 31, 1947.

3. Lift controls on all hotel accommodations including trailer camps.

4. Remove ceilings on rents above $225 a month after application of the 10 per cent increase. Buck had urged this provision, saying people who can afford to pay that amount "need no protection."

5. Allow reasonably increased rent by agreement between landlord and tenant for certain improvements.

6. To continue rent control but without the help of OPA, ending federal supervision next Dec. 31.

7. Leave enforcement to the courts, permitting the tenant to go into any court with his grievance. Recovery would be fixed at $500 or triple damages, whichever was greater.

8. Allow the states to apply to a federal agency not yet designated to take over controls.

9. Transfer of rent records and files to the department of commerce where they would be made accessible to the courts, tenants or landlords.

10. Make the bill effective the first day of the first month after its adoption.

11. Exempt the District of Columbia from the provisions of the bill. This area has its own rent control law.

12. To require continuance of present services for which the tenant was paying last Dec. 31.

3,500 CAGE FANS TUMBLED BY COLLAPSE

Stands Snap as Rooters Cheer Half-Time Lead Over Wisconsin.

By The Associated Press

LAFAYETTE, Ind., Feb. 25—A section of new wooden bleachers in the Purdue university fieldhouse, jammed with 3,500 fans in the crowd of 11,000 at the Purdue-Wisconsin basketball game, collapsed last night, killing two students and injuring about 200 persons.

The crash of splintering timber as the 62 rows of the 100-foot long structure sagged and fell to the dirt floor brought an ominous silence over the 11,000 cheering, howling fans.

There was no panic. The hundreds of occupants of the bleachers, some of whom had tumbled as high as 30 feet, limped or crawled through the crowd to seek medical attention. Many of those in the bleacher seats had been standing and cheering for the Purdue team leaving the floor with a 34 to 33 lead over the Wisconsin Badgers, Western conference leaders.

As the first screams of the injured were heard a panic among the huge crowd threatened but athletic officials appealed for order and quiet and asked uninjured persons to leave the building as quickly as possible.

Officials quickly mobilized crews of students, many of them war veterans with experience in handling wounded.

A passing Greyhound bus was utilized as an ambulance and took about 45 persons to a hospital. All of the city's ambulances were summoned and for nearly two hours took the injured to the city's two hospitals.

Identified Dead Students

Dr. D. T. Cox, Tippecanoe county coroner, identified two dead students as Roger Gelhausen, 24, of Garrett, Ind., a freshman navy veteran killed instantly last night, and William J. Feldman, 20, of East Chicago, Ind., who died of a skull fracture in St. Elizabeth hospital.

Twenty Purdue football players were killed in 1903 in the wreck of a special train taking them to Indianapolis for a game with Indiana university. A gasoline explosion in a dressing room killed football stars Carl Edward Dahlbeck of Lydonville, Vt., and Tommy McCannon of Evansville, Ind., in September 1936.

Last night's accident came as about 3,500 spectators in bleachers on the east end of the floor jumped and yelled in tribute to Purdue's team, which had gained a 34-to-33 lead just before the half ended. The 62 rows of seats in the 100-foot-long structure sagged to the dirt floor before players reached the dressing rooms.

"Uninjured Students Magnificent"

"I heard the stands shake and tremble and a terrified murmur go up from the persons in them," said Police Lt. Joseph Clark. "The students who weren't injured were magnificent. I imagine most of the fellows were ex-GI's and they seemed to know exactly what to do in helping the injured."

Members of two honorary societies, the Gimlets and Reamers, were serving as ushers and helped pull out spectators trapped between splintered planks.

Haynes Sleeth, principal of Roosevelt Junior High school in Kokomo, said:

"I was seated on the west side, exactly opposite the bleachers that collapsed. I had just remarked to some friends how attractive the bleachers looked. Just then the bleachers started to slide, slowly at first, then with an increasing rush which ended with a crunching thud. The crowd which was not caught was frozen with horror. Then came the screams.

"It seemed like the center section collapsed first and the sides caved in on top."

"People Cry in Pain"

Betty Joe Roberson, 17, of Indianapolis, sitting in the collapsed bleachers and suffering cuts on her first everybody got panicky and they climbed down. I could see people crying in pain. I myself was not hurt, but I was scared. I know there were many people hurt."

The Rev. Father Joseph Carroll was one of the priests who administered to the injured and dying. He said he was sitting in the bleachers when they collapsed. "I was thrown from my seat and I was pinned in the debris," he said. "I was not hurt. From the time I got out until I left the field was about 11:30. The fieldhouse was filled with confusion and the most pitiful screams and moans I have ever heard. Many were hurt badly. I saw one boy with his leg broken in two places. Another had a broken arm. Many were cut and bruised."

GROUPS BACK HEALTH PLAN

Representatives of 19 Organizations Indorse Joint City-County District.

A group of 23 representatives from 19 civic and service organizations in the city and county, at a public meeting in the Marion Chamber of Commerce offices on North State street Monday night, indorsed the Chamber's recommendation for a combined health district for the Marion area.

The combined health district would replace the present city and county health districts with a single district. The group also asked the public health sub-committee of the Chamber to develop a study of methods for financing such a program. W. E. Goodwin, chairman of the public health sub-committee and Henry Krigbaum, chairman of the Chamber's civic affairs committee, told the group that such a study would be made.

All representatives agreed that Marion needed a more adequate health program and that the city and county needed a coordinated program.

In discussing the combined health program, Mr. Goodwin, in charge of last night's meeting, pointed out in representing his report that the proposal was not a criticism of the paid staff responsible for Marion's health program, but that "the criticism should be directed to the citizens of the community who have not seen fit to permit the financing or have not taken an interest in attempting to secure an adequate program."

Formation of a single health district in the Marion area would combine the function of the present city and county boards under the jurisdiction of a district health board.

Advocates of the plan believe it would give the city far more thorough and extensive health protection than is possible under the present system.

RUSSIA AGREES TO U.S. TAKING JAP ISLES

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Feb. 24—Secretary of State Marshall said today Russia has advised the United States that the Soviet government feels an American trusteeship over the Japanese-mandated islands in the Pacific would be "entirely fair."

Marshall told a news conference that the Soviet note said Russia took into account that the island were won chiefly by American armed forces which bore "incomparably greater sacrifices" than others in the Pacific advance.

Only Russia, Marshall said, has concurred in the American trusteeship proposal, which was submitted to the United Nations last week.

Soaring Hog Prices May Soon Push Pork Chops To $1 a Pound

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, Feb. 25—A pork chop soon may cost $1 a pound at retail butcher shops as a result of the sharp advance in prices for live hogs in recent weeks, an agriculture department meat specialist said today.

"Dollar bacon" also was seen as a possibility as pork-on-the-hoof soared to all time record prices in the nation's markets. Live hogs sold yesterday at a top of $29 a hundred pounds at Chicago.

Russ Jeter, wholesale market analyst for the agriculture department, said that prices of pork in wholesale markets were being marked up in line with the live hog advances. He said these increases should reach consumers later this week.

"Some retail shops may translate wholesale prices into pork at $1 a pound for center cuts," Jeter said.

Good Demand Blamed

Livestock experts attributed the soaring hog market to continued good consumer demand for meat and an unusually small run of hogs.

Marvin Henning agriculture department reporter in the hog market, said, "only about 20 per cent of last spring's pig crop still remains to be marketed and we face low receipts until last autumn's crop starts moving around May or June."

Livestock experts explained, however, that even last autumn's crop was not large. Pigs farrowed were estimated at 30,627,000 head, 11 per cent lower than the preceding year and 5 per cent below the 1935-44 average. It was the smallest pig crop since 1940.

Available Pork Small

As a result, the amount of pork available this spring and summer also will be the smallest in seven years, traders stated.

A spokesman for one meat packer said it was consumer demand which was pushing up live hog quotations, and that prices paid for hogs merely reflected the price the consumer had demonstrated willingness to pay for pork.

Another packer said the price for hogs would decline as the consumer displayed resistance to pork prices.

The highest value of a prime 200 lb. hog ever sold in the Chicago market was recorded when prices for prices, experts said. The following table shows low and high prices at Chicago during the depression years:

Year	Low	High
1930	$6.25	$11.90
1931	3.30	8.50
1932	1.65	5.55
1933	2.00	5.55

Until the present boom since end of the war the all-time hog price high here was $23.60 in 1919.

Hog Prices Continue Rise on Market Here

Hog prices continued to break all-time records at the Marion Union Stockyards today with animals in the 180 to 250 pound bracket selling for $29, approximately 75 cents above yesterday's high.

Hog prices here were about the same as those in other midwestern markets, livestock officials said. Approximately 150 head were expected to be sold during the day.

Practically all of the hogs coming in locally are from fall litters, according to stockyard officials. At yesterday's auction, top quality hogs brought $28.75, topping last week's prices by $2.

Galion Man, Overcome By Fumes, Recovering

Special to The Star

GALION, Feb. 25—Condition of James Powers, 83, found overcome by gas fumes in his apartment here last night, was reported as "fair" today by officials at Galion City hospital. Mr. Powers, a retired Erie railroad conductor, formerly lived in Marion.

Powers, who lives alone at 223½ Harding Way East, was found about 7:30 p. m. yesterday by his son, Clarence, who had gone to his father's residence for a routine visit. The son told police he found his father unconscious and the room filled with gas fumes from a heating stove. The elder Powers was given oxygen by the city fire department and taken to City hospital. Police said the gas jets were defective.

LIQUOR SYSTEM END REQUESTED

Churches Add Their Guns to Barrage Leveled on Monopoly.

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., Feb. 25—The executive secretary of the Ohio Council of Churches today called on a council legislative seminar to help "take the state government out of the liquor business."

"It is time for the church to wake up and organize an effective campaign to put the liquor business back in the hands of the disreputable so that youth will understand that to play with liquor or any of its associates is a dangerous business," declared Dr. B. F. Lamb.

The secretary's appeal added still another torpedo tube to the battery trained on the Ohio liquor monopoly system, which became plainly evident yesterday in the second public hearing of the state senate's investigation of the state liquor department.

"At long last, the church public is beginning to realize its dilemma," averred Dr. Lamb to 50 young Protestant clergymen attending a two-day legislative seminar.

Ridiculous Dilemma

"It is ridiculous for us to increase teachers' salaries and in other ways develop an educational system to train good citizens and then, at the same time, promote the liquor business which tears down and destroys good citizenship."

Dr. Lamb called for the assemblage to "use your influence now to save our government and help save our society by divorcing the greatest enemy of modern life from what should be one of the greatest friends of modern society—our state government."

Some pretty fancy torpedos, aimed by veteran political gunners, already have exploded before the senate's five-member investigating committee in only seven hours of questioning.

Chairman Roscoe R. Walcutt (R-Franklin) set 9:30 a. m. Thursday for resumption of the inquiry after yesterday's two-hour session, during which a committee member put into the proceedings a bit of dynamite against the idea of a state liquor business.

Edward E. Tharp, a Democrat and former assistant supervisor of state liquor stores, said:

"I think the state department of liquor control should be abolished and a board of liquor control set up to govern the liquor business from start to finish, if we have to have the state in the liquor business."

Sprinkles Criticism Liberally

Tharp sprinkled criticism of the state monopoly system liberally among other tidbits of testimony given in more than an hour on the witness stand. He declared the current personnel director of the state liquor department was

5 Children Die In Auto Crash

4 Killed Instantly; One Dies After Collision East of Toledo.

By The Associated Press

TOLEDO, O., Feb. 25—Four children were killed instantly and another is near death as the result of a truck-automobile crash near Genoa, O., 10 miles east of Toledo on state route 120, at 8:30 a. m. today.

The dead are: Jerry Anderson, 8, of Woodville O.; Sandra Willey, 6, of Elmore, O., Daniel Dunn, 10, of Genoa, Charles Olcott, 16, of Genoa, and James Neihausmeyer, 12, of Genoa.

State highway patrolmen said they were in an automobile driven by Claire Dunn, 38, of Genoa, physical director and assistant football coach at Waite High school, Toledo, and were enroute to Toledo to attend a private school. Dunn is in a serious condition in St. Vincent's hospital.

Mr. Dunn is the uncle of Daniel Dunn. Daniel's two brothers, Jerry, 17, and Teddy, 7, were burned to death Jan. 1, 1946, after fire from defective Christmas tree lights burned their home in Genoa.

Clinton N. Sisson, 28, of Massillon, O., truck driver, said he was traveling from Detroit to Massillon when the truck and trailer skidded on ice and the trailer came loose from the tractor. The Dunn car crashed into the trailer, state patrolmen were told.

TRUMAN MODIFIES TRADE AGREEMENTS

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Feb. 25—President Truman today sharply modified the reciprocal trade agreements program to make "doubly sure that American interests will be properly safeguarded."

Mr. Truman said in a statement that an executive order providing for procedural changes followed conversations he held with Senators Vandenberg (R-Mich) and Millikin (R-Colo), and Undersecretaries of State Dean Acheson and William L. Clayton.

The order, Mr. Truman said, "formalizes and makes mandatory certain existing trade agreement procedures" and in addition "makes some procedural changes."

The President said that the provisions of the order do not deviate from the traditional principles of former secretary of state Cordell Hull, who fathered the program, and added in his statement:

"All of us must now recognize that bi-partisan support of our foreign economic policy, as well as of our foreign policy in general, is essential."

DAILY LENTEN MEDITATIONS

IN THE CHRIST OF THE CROSS WE GLORY

Today's Text: "And I, If I be lifted up from the earth, will draw all men unto me."—John 12:32.

THIS chapter shows us that the personality of Christ was becoming attractive. The Great Master was beginning to draw. We read: "There were certain Greeks that went up to worship at the feast." They came to Philip saying: "Sir, we would see Jesus."

Why were these Greeks, these Gentiles drawn to Jesus? Was it only curiosity or was it heart-hunger. The pangs of unsatisfied craving; an unrest which no philosophy could soothe, a desire for which eloquence and music and art had no bread? And what does Christ say when this first group of inquirers from the outer world draws near? And Jesus said: The hour is come that the Son of Man should be glorified." Here was the beginning of the glory He sought, the drawing of all men to Himself. All manner of men are being drawn to the Cross and are there reconciled, first to God and then to one another.

They Couldn't Send a Visitor Away Thirsty

BY HAL BOYLE
Associated Press Writer

KEY WEST, Fla. Feb. 25—Key Westers live on the last stepping stone between Florida and Cuba, and like all island peoples they cherish their freedom and don't like faraway folks in Washington, D. C., telling them what they can't do.

Thereby hangs the tale of Pablo and Aristophanes, a classic yarn in this former pirates' haunt that has become America's southernmost tourist resort.

Hal Boyle

When the late "noble experiment" known as prohibition was a law in the books but a laugh in the land, the Florida Keys became flourishing terminals for rum runners from Cuba and the Bahamas.

Pablo and Aristophanes took no part in such new enterprises. They simply kept on serving drinks as usual in their small bar across the alleyway from their big frame house.

Could Avoid Heat

There without ceremony or protocol natives and visitors could sit in the cool shadow and avoid the simmering heat outside by nursing tall concoctions of ice and rum and wonderful colors.

Every large old Key West frame house has a railing with banisters carved in individual designs. So proud were Pablo and Aristophanes of their little bar that in the wooden railing on their home they had carved a pattern of hearts, wine and flasks and rum bottles. It is still there on the old paint-peeling porch.

Nobody thought it unusual that Pablo and Aristophanes should continue to slake the townspeople's thirst. It was all open and above board. Just as drinking always had been in Key West for two centuries.

But in time a federal revenue agent called, was served a friendly highball and soon the bewildered owners found themselves on trial for violating the dry laws. They were convicted and sentenced to a year in jail.

"Come When You're Ready"

"You must understand we have only done our duty," the officials said regretfully. "You will have to go to jail. But there is no hurry. Come when you are ready."

Pablo and Aristophanes assured the officials they understood no personal malice was involved, and that the whole thing had been caused by those incomprehensible people in Washington.

In due time they went to the old Key West jail which once had borne this stern warning to prisoners on its door:

"If you don't come back by 9:30, you're locked out for the night."

In those days prisoners usually ate at home, because the jailers had convinced town officials this would help reduce the high cost of local government.

Move Into Jail

Politely Pablo and Aristophanes packed the quarters in the jail which each desired. Then they moved in their furniture and their families. And so with music and plenty of good home-cooking, they faced their arduous year in jail.

A woman writer, learning belatedly of their conviction, phoned the jail to volunteer her help. To her surprise Pablo and Aristophanes answered the call themselves.

"Come right over," they said hospitably.

The mystified lady came to the jail shortly afterwards.

The door opened, and there stood Pablo and Aristophanes, dressed in their Sunday clothes, bowing and smiling. They led her inside. A nice luncheon had been spread for her complete with table cloths and napkins.

To slake the thirst raised by the delicious arroz con pollo (chicken with saffron rice and pimientos) Pablo and Aristophanes, thoughtful as ever, served the nice lady—wine.

In Key West it was the thing to do.

Simplest of All Forms

It is the simplest of all forms to use. No tax-figuring to do. You answer a few questions and mail it to your internal revenue collector.

The full tax is supposed to have been withheld from people who worked for wages or salary and made under $5,000.

So if your only income was from wages or salary and was under $5,000, you can use Form W-2.

Suppose, in addition to wages or salary, you had other income. Can you still use Form W-2?

Yes, provided that added income was not more than $100 and was from interest or dividends and wages not subject to withholding and your total income was under $5,000.

If you had income of any amount, no matter how small, from things like rents or annuities or professional fees you can't use Form W-2. You'll have to use the 1040 short or long-form, depending on your case.

The 1040 Short-Form

(The difference between the 1040 short-form and the 1040 long-form is this:

(With the short-form you do no figuring. You find your tax in the table on the back. With the long-form you must figure your own tax.)

The short-form can be used only by people whose 1946 income—it can be from any source—was under $5,000.

For example: People like landlords or doctors, paid in rents or fees, can use the short-form if their total 1946 income was under $5,000.

(They can't use Form W-2 which is only for people paid in wages or salary from which tax regularly was withheld.)

The 1040 Long-Form

You must use this and figure your own tax if your income was $5,000 or over, from wages or any sources.

What about deductions?

When you use Form W-2 or the 1040 short-form, you're automatically given credit for deductions amounting to 10 per cent of your income.

If your deductions, such as for medical bills, were actually more than 10 per cent of income, don't use Form W-2 or the 1040 short-form.

In that case, use the 1040 long-form where you have to itemize all your deductions but deduct them from your tax when you figure it out.

What of the people who have to use the 1040 long-form because their income was $5,000 or more?

They — every one — can take automatically a $500 deduction, even though the actual deductions didn't amount to that. They don't have to itemize.

If their deductions actually were more than $500, they must itemize them to get credit for them.

YOUR HEALTH

By HERMAN BUNDESEN, M.D.

Bleeding from Mouth

When bleeding from the mouth occurs, the average person is likely to be alarmed. And he has every right to be, for this may be a sign of serious condition. Certainly, it should never be dismissed lightly without a thorough and expert examination.

As a matter of fact, the blood may not be coming from any portion of the mouth itself, but, rather, from the back part of the nose, the esophagus, which leads from the mouth to the stomach or the windpipe and bronchi which are the tubes in the lungs.

When bleeding from the mouth occurs, the doctor's first job is to find from just what source the blood is coming. With a mirror he will examine the back part of the nose or nasal pharynx. Then he will look into the larynx or voice box.

If he suspects that the bleeding is coming from the windpipe or bronchi he will make an examination with a bronchoscope which is an instrument made up of a tube with lights which can be passed into the windpipe and bronchi and permits the doctor to examine these structures directly.

If it is thought that the blood is coming from the esophagus which leads from the mouth to the stomach, an X-ray examination of the esophagus can be made followed by the use of an esophagoscope which is like a bronchoscope.

According to Dr. Paul M. Moore, Jr. of Cleveland, among the conditions which may produce bleeding from the esophagus are varicose veins, tumor, ulcer of the esophagus, or the presence of some object which has been swallowed. Varicose veins in the esophagus may cause no symptoms other than the bleeding. Treatment which sometimes is successful is injection of the enlarged veins with a solution of sodium morrhuate. This is carried out through the esophagoscope.

A tumor of the esophagus will cause such symptoms as difficulty in swallowing over a long period of time together with occasional bleeding. Such tumors frequently can be removed surgically, depending on their location. If surgical removal is not possible, X-ray treatments may be tried.

Bleeding from the windpipe and bronchi may be due to tuberculosis, pneumonia, tumors or bronchiectasis, a condition in which the bronchi are enlarged or dilated. X-ray and bronchoscopic examination permits of an accurate diagnosis.

The first step in the treatment of all these cases of bleeding is to stop the bleeding itself. Then the depleting effects of loss of blood must be remedied and, if necessary, the giving of blood injections into a vein. Finally efforts must be made to first determine and then cure the cause of the bleeding.

"Love in the South Seas" Wins Hit Rating at Rotary Party

A bit of Broadway, or at least a reasonable facsimile thereof, was brought to Marion Monday night by the Rotary club.

Billy Rose was not there, but capable substitutes were present in the persons of Wilson B. Tway and Edgar W. Barnhart, Rotarians who again proved their right to compete with the famed mogul of New Yorker in the field of musical comedy production.

Monday night Tway and Barnhart staged another entertainment riotous with presentation of their musical burlesque, "Love in the South Seas," or "What's Saroeg with Rotary." It made up the program for a ladies night party in which wives of the Rotary club members were guests, together with other dignitaries invited for the occasion. The audience totaled approximately 200. Preceding the musical comedy a 6:30 o'clock dinner was served.

"Love in the South Seas" consisting of a prologue and two acts, was built around the story of a Rotarian who was shipwrecked on Hubba-Hubba Isle and who later himself and a wandering Kiwanian from the Hubba-Hubba islanders dinner cauldron by taking the natives into organizing a Rotary club. Needless to say, there was a lot of rollicking comedy and several catchy songs provided for the listeners in the process of telling the story.

The entire production was the creation of Tway and Barnhart, with Tway as author of the story, Barnhart composing the music and both collaborating on the lyrics.

Songs Are Melodious

The songs had swing and rhythm and there is no exaggeration in saying that some of them measured up to professional standards. One of them, "Silver Lagoon" was especially intriguing and resulted in the audience calling for several encores. Possibly the fact that a trio of attractive Rotary Anns (wives of Rotarians) sang the number, had something to do with the enthusiastic audience response, but even so the musical quality of the composition did actually register it as having almost Hit Parade class.

The Rotary Anns were Mrs. Gertie Mease, Mrs. Pat Hiser and Mrs. Betty Sherer. They also contributed charm and vivacity to accompany the male performers' comedy roles in making "Love in the South Seas" a most enjoyable evening's entertainment.

Special scenic effects and stage properties provided a South Sea setting. Interspersed throughout the lines of the comedy were frequent jokes relating to local residents. The production was presented from a stage constructed across the north end of the Harding Hotel ball room.

Members of Cast

Howard F. Guthery started the row of laughs. Others in the cast were J. Herndon Wiant as Hubba Dooit, the impoverished native Rotarian; Mr. Tway as Moolan, ruler of Hubba-Hubba Isle, Paul R. Williams as Noolagum, the ruler's assistant in love with the ruler's daughter, Barney Bluetan as Pumayeena, the ruler's assistant, Gertie Mease as Princess Missymeetin, the ruler's daughter Pat Hiser as Nevaerla, companion of Missymeetin; Betty Sherer as Leevaerla, companion of Missymeetin, E. Paul Bachman as W. E. Bulldo, a Kiwanian who sees the light.

Bulldo, by the way, proved guilty of the virtually unpardonable offense of deserting Kiwanis to join Rotary, but did so only to escape transmission into the next world via the Hubba-Hubba boiling pot. He defended his otherwise treasonable act by declaring: "After all, there's only a shade of difference between a dead Kiwanian and a live Rotarian."

Preceding the play brief introductory talks were given by Henry A. Mackley, Rotary club president, and Jean K. Barnhart, program chairman.

Stage manager was Donald E. Sloan. Others in charge were assistant stage manager, E. Stewart Norris, associate musical director, Virginia Grover; director, Dorothea D. Tway; make-up Genevieve Barnhart.

Miss Grover, who was to have played piano accompaniments and also piano numbers between acts, was unable to be present because of illness and her place was taken by Mr. Barnhart.

Vocal numbers sung during the performance were "Alone," by Howard Dooit, "I'm the Guy," by Sultan Moolan and assistants, "Be Sweet to Me, Princess," by Missymeetin and Nevaerla, "Silver Lagoon," by Missymeetin, Leevaerla and Nevaerla.

Novel and artistic souvenir programs distributed to the audience carried the caption "This MESS produced by MESSERS barnhart and tway."

Miss Ann Baldwin attended the party as reporter from the Harding High school journalism classes.

To Show Army Films At GI Post Room

Final plans have been made for the first of a series of combat pictures to be shown under the sponsorship of GI Post No. 583, American Legion, Wednesday night at the post clubrooms on East Center street, rear of the Midway restaurant.

Due to the limited seating space the series of pictures will be shown to adults only. George Hildebrandt, service officer of the post announces. Veterans, their parents and families, who would be most interested in seeing the films, are invited to attend the series, which will be given each Wednesday night, with the cooperation of Capt. A. L. Stevens Jr. and Sgt. Claire H. Oberdier of the local Army recruiting office. There will be no admission charge and the pictures will be shown at 8 o'clock.

The pictures, all of which will be shown for the first time in this locality, will include "Action in Okinawa," "Two Japs in Dawn Sortie," "Activities in the Philippines," "Experience Overcomes Tank Obstacles" "V-I Over Antwerp," "Airborne Supply Base," "Activities in the European Theater of Operations," "Atrocity Films," "Death of Mussolini," "Malaria Mike," "The Airways of the Future," a "March of Time" on "Brazil" and "The Seeds of Destiny" showing what is taking place in Europe at the present time.

The committee from the Legion in charge of arranging for the programs include Gerald R. Messenger, chairman, Harold B. Metzger, Ralph G. Rose, Russell R. Garver, Robert L. Johnston, Basil E. Hill and James G. Smith.

BOWLING RESULTS

Bowlers in the Industrial and Commercial leagues had one of their warmest evenings Friday night at Palace alleys. The over-600 series were posted and a 256 game was bowled.

John Stemmetz was top single game bowler for the night with his 256 in the Industrial league. Krauz had high series of 631, including games of 237, 152 and 212. Council Approves Agreement On Operation of New Airport

An agreement by the city with the federal government guaranteeing operation of the projected municipal airport for the benefit of the general public was approved by city council Monday night.

The compact, prepared by the federal government, is termed a "sponsor's assurance" and is one of several steps which must be taken before a definite grant of federal funds is made.

The Civil Aeronautics Administration has already made a tentative allocation to Marion of $246,500, to be matched by the city with $269,250.

The contract, effective for 20 years, calls for a guarantee by the city that (1) master plan for construction of the airport will be set up and that appropriate financial and engineering arrangements will be made, (2) the airport will be operated without discrimination, which includes the following points—(a) carriers may not be given exclusive rights to the field unless other fields are available to the general public, (b) the city may not keep any carrier or (c) all qualified persons may use the airport (c) no exclusive rights may be given to airplane or gasoline dealers, operators of training schools or others; (3) the city will properly maintain and operate the field, (4) proper records and reports will be kept.

Plant Annexed

An ordinance was passed accepting an application for annexation to the city submitted by the Quaker Oats plant and the Pure Oil bulk plant at route 95 just west of the former corporation limit. Dale Halberstein, Marion attorney representing the former company, told council that it was the policy of the company to attempt to have their branches part of the cities in or near which they were located. He pointed out advantages to the city in such an arrangement, including the feasibility of supervision over the plant by city departments of health and sanitation.

A salary of $225 a month and mileage was approved for a position of business supervisor at City hospital. Safety-Service Director E. O. Uncapher told council employment of a business supervisor was made necessary by the illness of Edwin P. Ferguson, administrator of City hospital.

Council authorized issuance of notes in anticipation of a $15,000 bond issue to finance purchase of a 750 gallon pumper fire truck. The board of control is expected to meet today to consider bids which have been received to supply the equipment. Delivery date is Nov. 30.

A petition to vacate Westmoreland drive between Keener and Broad streets, brought in at last meeting, was returned to council with the approval of the street and alley committee. The city solicitor was directed to bring in appropriate legislation at next meeting.

Asks Elevator Approval

James L. Boughers, who proposed to operate a restaurant on East Center street next to the courthouse, submitted a petition to use an extra foot of the building's south alley there in order that an elevator for loading and unloading supplies might be installed. The petition had the approval of the street and alley committee and was referred to the city solicitor for legislation at the next meeting.

A petition was received from Joseph Sansotta proprietor of the Barq Bottling Co., for commercial zoning of a lot on North Main street at Copeland avenue. Mr. Sansotta stated he desires to build a bottling plant on the site and move his facilities from their present location on Davis street.

Councilman Edward J. Zimmer reported that W. L. Williams owner of property at the southwest corner of South Prospect street and Bellefontaine avenue, objected to the fact that a large part of the area of both thoroughfares fronting on his property was prohibited to parking. SUFFERS NO LONGER FROM CONSTIPATION

Eats famous breakfast cereal —gets wonderful results

Have you had to take a harsh laxative recently? Then read this sincere, unsolicited letter:

"I want to tell you what ALL-BRAN has done for myself and daughter. We were both victims of constipation and had to take a laxative every night to keep going. Then we heard of KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN and started eating it regularly for breakfast with grand results. Thank you for producing such a wonderful cereal." Mrs. Martha Layne, Box 191, Charleston, W. Va.

Eating KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN regularly has brought lasting relief to thousands suffering from constipation due to lack of bulk in the diet. If this is your trouble, you too may find lasting relief if you eat ALL-BRAN every day—and drink plenty of water. If after 10 days you are not completely satisfied, send the empty carton back to the Kellogg Company, Battle Creek, Michigan — and get double your money back!

ALL-BRAN is not a purgative but a tasty breakfast food made from the vital outer layers of whole wheat. Eat daily either as a cereal, or in muffins. Just ask your grocer for KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN.

LACK OF FUNDS BLAMED FOR SLOW REFORESTATION

Ohio Forester Tells Group Program Being Hampered.

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., Feb. 25 — Lack of funds to grow seedlings has slowed reforestation in Ohio —not only of strip-mined areas but of other waste lands, Robert R. Paton, forester in charge of state nurseries, told the Columbus chapter of Friends of the Land last night.

Paton said 99 per cent of the state's waste land would grow a cover of trees, but that artificial measures were necessary to speed the process.

Saudi Arabia Moves in Global Politics on Rising Tide of Oil

... three stories regarding ... oil development in ... by Max Hoyd, Asso... press bureau chief at Cairo, ... been touring the desert ... to study the situation ... hand.

By MAX BOYD
Associated Press Writer

DHAHRAN, SAUDI ARABIA, Feb. 25—The old Bedouin had a ... like the painting of an ancient ... king. He eyed his ... visitor and the visitor's ... with cool detachment.

He had seen Americans before ... as for the car, he was no ... impressed than the Arab ... saw an airplane flying for the ... time and said:

"That's what they made it for, ..."

Through an interpreter, they exchanged polite greetings. The American looked out over the hot barren land, the miles of space empty except for this man and his family and his herd of camels and sheep, and asked:

"How in the world, do you ... yourself?"

"We have philosophy, and women," the Bedouin said, "and now, I suppose, world politics."

Guess Is Good One

The old Arab's guess that he and his friends would have international affairs to talk about from now on was a good one. Rocky, sandy Saudi Arabia has moved into the main stream of world politics on a tide of oil.

King Ibn Saud, the 66-year-old desert warrior who rules an estimated 4,000,000 people in an area about half the size of the United States, granted oil concessions in 1933 to the Arabian American Oil company, formed by the Standard Oil company of California and the Texas company. The development that has occurred since then was obscured considerably by the war.

It is apparent, now, however, in the fact that ARAMCO—as it is known to company employes—has become the largest single oil supplier of the United States navy, is producing more than 300,000 barrels a day and has hopes of raising this to 500,000 or more.

"The only limit is the market," says James MacPherson, the Scot who, now a naturalized American, is resident vice president of the company.

Russians Comment

American's position in this fabulously rich oil field has drawn attention recently from at least one Russian commentator. He said the interest of the United States in the area was military, not economic.

Henry Wallace, former United States secretary of commerce who resigned after questioning American foreign policy, also sounded a warning against what he called the danger of buying oil in the Middle East with soldiers' lives.

But MacPherson calls ARAMCO's operations "the greatest creative job in American industry today."

America is using up oil faster ... it is being found in the United States, he says. If another war should come it is doubtful ... America's reserves would be sufficient for her needs.

"It is axiomatic that we need further reserves than we have in the United States," MacPherson continues. "Anything that will conserve crude oil in the United States is highly desirable."

2 Other Firms Buy In

Two additional American companies, Standard of New Jersey and Socony Vacuum, which have market outlets in Europe, arranged recently to buy a 40 per cent interest in ARAMCO. This would provide additional capital to increase refinery capacity, hard-surface 150 miles of roads, build airplane landing strips in the different producing fields, and make other improvements necessary to increase production greatly.

France has protested against the deal, however. The French government contends that by it Standard of New Jersey and Socony Vacuum are violating an agreement they entered into in 1928 with their British and French partners in the Iraq Petroleum company. Under this pact all the partners agreed not to obtain additional concessions in a vast area of the Middle East, generally following the boundaries of the old Ottoman empire, without first consulting and agreeing among themselves.

The American companies contend that the 1928 agreement was invalidated as far as the government-owned French company was concerned because, while France was ruled from Vichy, the company became an enemy concern.

Whatever the outcome of this controversy, ARAMCO plans to continue and increase the flow of oil. Its concessions, covering an area larger than Texas and California combined, run in one instance to 1999, in another to 2005. By the latter date, MacPherson says, he believes there will still be enough oil for every profitable operations.

Mother of Six Faces Stolen Goods Charge

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., Feb. 25—A 35-year-old mother of six children was under indictment on a charge of receiving property stolen by her 14-year-old son. The paroled convict with whom she was arrested in Newark Feb. 4 faced a return to Ohio penitentiary.

A Franklin county grand jury yesterday indicted Mrs. Virgie May Minor, whose son, Glen, 14, is serving an indeterminate sentence in the Boys' Industrial school in connection with a series of burglaries on the northside of Columbus.

Gale E. Henthorne, 39, of Newark, who was arrested there with Mrs. Minor, was paroled last fall from Ohio penitentiary after serving 10 years of a life sentence for the rape of a five-year-old Licking county girl in 1936. The jury no-billed a stolen property charge against Henthorne so he could be recommitted to the penitentiary as a parole violator, Prosecutor Ralph J. Bartlett said.

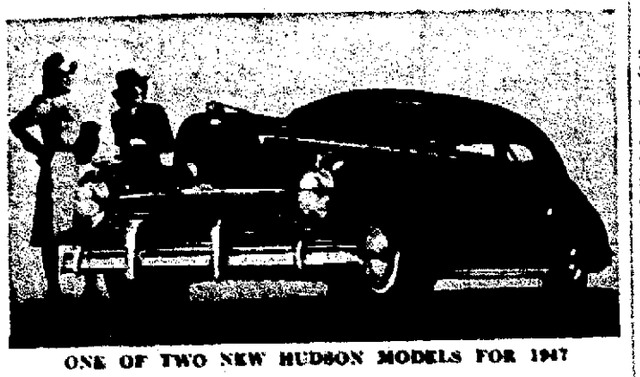
Haberman's Show 1947 Hudson



ONE OF TWO NEW HUDSON MODELS FOR 1947

New 1947 model Hudson automobiles now are on display at the Haberman Motor Sales showroom at 203 South Prospect street. The agency is showing a four-door sedan in the Super-Six model.

Two lines, the Super Series and the Commodore Series are available, with a choice of 102-horsepower Super-Six and 128-horsepower Super-Eight engines. The Super Sixes are available in three or five - passenger coupes, broughams, sedans or convertible broughams. Super Eights and Commodore Sixes are available in five-passenger coupes or sedans.

Commodore Eights are available in five-passenger coupes, sedans or convertible broughams. All body types are offered in nine solid colors and four two-tone combinations.

Changeover to the new models was made without interruption of production as changes were restricted to carefully selected features of interior and exterior trim. The massiveness of the grille is heightened by enlargement of the crown over the top and sides of the bonnet ornament. Greater protection for the grille is provided by newly positioned front bumper guards. Interiors are improved by changing the upholstery trim style.

Emphasis on safety is continued through use of patented double-safe hydraulic brakes with a mechanical reserve braking system, patented auto-poise control, center-point steering and "America's safest body."

RED CROSS

benefits is another home service responsibility.

Communications service consisting of assisting with communications between the servicemen and their families when normal means of communications are not available, when the use of normal means has not been successful, when an emergency situation justifies the use of special Red Cross facilities, or when the situation is one in which a personal visit or interview by a Red Cross representative is needed.

Home service also supplies information concerning government regulations or legislation affecting servicemen and their dependents. The serviceman and his dependents is also assisted by providing military and naval authorities with social information required for medical and psychiatric treatment and by making reports on home conditions needed by commanding officers in deciding such questions as discharge or furlough.

Formed in 1942

The Home Service Corps was organized in Marion county in September 1942, although the group did not attain the status of a Corps until the following June. There were seven in the original group, all of whom were either professionally trained social workers or had social work experience under trained supervision.

In 1945 a new training course was organized and eight persons qualified. The corps members are helpful to the office staff giving many volunteer hours both at the office and being "on call" at home. During the past year they gave 2,456 hours of such service.

In 1946 another training course was organized and five persons were authorized as corps members. These corps members, together with those previously trained, have given many hours assisting at the office, taking care of emergency wires over the weekend, and they made 89 home visits during the past year.

Probably one of the most interesting activities of the corps this year was the organization of a group of foreign war brides. The corps planned this as an informal get-together so that these girls from other countries could get better acquainted and become better citizens of their new community. The girls were eager to learn new ways and are now enjoying a class in American cookery which is being instructed by Miss Ruth Kleinmaier, Nutrition chairman, and her co-chairman, Miss Mary Faye McMillen.

Lilienthal Must Be Surprised

DAVID E. LILIENTHAL is, after all, just another Harvard lawyer who joined the march on Washington in 1933. The fact he is still with the government, after most of his earlier companions have departed, does not make him indispensable.

Aside from the controversy that is swirling around his appointment to head the atomic energy commission is the matter of Mr. Lilienthal, himself. He must be surprised by the number and vehemence of his friends, as well as of his critics.

His friends have discovered suddenly that the fate of mankind rests in his hands. Among them are some who scarcely knew he existed until it fell to his lot to become the storm center of one of the greatest arguments of modern times.

The argument is whether control of the sources of industrial power—fuel, water power, monetary capital, manpower, transportation etc. —shall be exercised by government under a system of state socialism, or by individuals and corporations under a system of private enterprise.

Mr. Lilienthal took his position in this argument early. He is an advocate of state socialism; TVA, of which he became the successful and respected chairman, is a direct application of state socialism. When he was appointed by President Truman to lead the atomic energy commission, he automatically became an issue. Whatever may be said by those who would like to think they have won the battle to confine private enterprise to certain limited areas of trade, the battle is still in progress.

Mr. Lilienthal is in the thick of it. Atomic energy is in the thick of it. The United States is in the thick of it. With all due respect to Mr. Lilienthal, who is one of the ablest administrators turned up by the trial and error of the New Deal, he is only a symbol in this fight, not an indispensable personality.

No Strawberries

THE BUREAU of labor statistics pops up in the news with a report that wholesale prices hit a postwar high the middle of February. Simultaneously, department of agriculture economists are making ominous statements about the possibility that food prices may go above their December peak before they drop, perhaps in late spring or early summer.

This will be seized upon in some places as evidence that industrial wage rates must be jacked up still higher and will be a matter of extreme importance in preparations now afoot to shut down the rubber industry and other basic industries with strikes to force higher wages. Meanwhile, the majority of American workers will continue to do what they have done for generations.

They will temper the wind to the shorn lamb and wait for the inordinately high prices of the scarcest commodities to come down. They will not buy strawberries when strawberries are 50 cents a basket. They will not buy pork at upward of a dollar a pound. They will go up and down the list of commodities which are included in the index prepared by the bureau of labor statistics and spend their money where it will do the most good. They will go easy on citrus fruits because of the Florida freeze.

They will buy potatoes, which the government has been supporting with a public subsidy so the price wouldn't fall to the giveaway level at which the government is disposing of its own surplus stocks. They will make their money reach, and they will resent every attempt to boost wage rates and costs still higher, making it harder than ever for consumers to make ends meet. There is considerably more to it than statistics; there is common sense, which has been so far the missing factor in postwar wage adjustments.

Hitting Bottom

EDMUND E. SCHUSTER'S testimony on past events in the Ohio department of liquor control explains what Stanley B. Cofall, the department's new director, means when he says, "the morale in the whole department is so low there just isn't any morale."

This condition is more serious than anything that has happened in the past, continuation of morale-zero would cause real trouble. Director Cofall's job is to start morale on the upgrade. He is entitled to all the public help he can get.

He may be agreeably surprised in this respect. Ohioans in general are just as fed up with evidence that their state liquor monopoly has been manhandled as former Inspector Schuster, or Director Cofall. The latter will have no lack of support for any move he wants to make to prove that the manhandlers have overplayed their hand.

News Behind the News

By PAUL MALLON

Business and Labor Grumble About Republicans.

MIAMI, Fla. 25—The deeper you travel down here in the relaxing swarms of business and union directors, the more you will find discontent on both sides at the initial leadership of the Republicans.

Indeed you will find the reason behind the news that Republican strategist Taft has hastened forward with an announcement that congress most assuredly will pass something like the Case bill restricting union economic and political domination.

From the union directors' side of the sun emporiums on the beaches, you will get their arguments, already being widely printed, about the rights of collective bargaining to be wiped out, about a despotic cabal to destroy the unions, a great viewing with alarm. Naturally. The unions have chosen to look upon even any fair and objective move of reform as a dastardly plot. The utmost lobbying pressure is being used by them to arraign their Democrats against the Republicans on purely political grounds, to lend some chaos to the discussions and otherwise delay the results from congress of an election which they lost heavily at the polls. This seems to be the basic working strategy. Their views are all being published.

Attitude of Business

But the discontentment of business with Republican results so far has not reached print and is not widely known although it is widespread. A composite lecture to the Republicans which I received off the record from more than a dozen of them run like this:

"There was only one reason why the Republicans won such a strong popular victory at the polls last November. The people were tired of the union-Democratic coalition rule, and, of course, the public was tired of rationings, restrictions and being kicked around. But most of these union-Democratic measures had been killed by Mr. Truman in sheer fear of public wrath before election day. What the people wanted was a restoration of some sense in curbing the unions, a cessation of nationally destructive strikes. proved a lot of union people themselves wanted relief from their leaders.

"Already three months have passed, and we have nothing. The unions have gotten to the Republicans in some way and are trying to run them like they ran the Democratic party—without allegiance to party but from the inside.

"Strong Republican leadership to assert the popular will has been lacking. We have merely been pushed into a purely political fight between Mr. Truman on one side and Senators Taft and Vandenberg on the other, which is nullifying results—an outcome which is just what the union leaders wanted.

"In this situation we business people ourselves have shown no tendency to assert ourselves. We are afraid or too timid to speak out, and tell what we know to be true.

Economy In Danger

"The whole movement to restore this nation economically is therefore teetering and could fall. The country knew what it wanted. The people demanded it. They are not getting it.

"Why the Republicans even ran on a platform of tax reduction and now are involved in a nullifying argument as to how it shall be done, if at all. (Note—the promises were made by individual Republican candidates generally, it appears from a casual study of the record.)

"This country desperately needs leadership and is not getting any."

My own feeble voice of response appears not sufficiently strong to reassure anyone very much. The delay of three months since election (it is only seven weeks since the new congress actually assembled) gave time for the unions to organize a lobbying campaign which truly has reached strong proportions. Republicans are considerably new at this game. The news from Washington shows some confusion exists, particularly among freshmen, as a result. But canvasses of congressional sentiment certainly show a strong majority behind many steps suggested by the Republican leadership, and every prospect of ultimate enactment of the program. The reassurance Taft has given will achieve some popular pacification. A beginning of reform like the Case bill can certainly be passed if the unions do not succeed in delaying action until they wear down majority determination—and passed this time over a Truman veto. Perhaps stronger measures to outlaw the closed shop cannot be passed without trouble now, and consideration of these at this time may delay results which are needed at once to re-establish some public assurances.

The arguments are about all in now. A bill has been promised for March. Certainly any stretching further of the officially planned deliberate consideration will be dangerous, because it would encourage public suspicion that the unions are throwing the Republicans off the track.

Just a Minute

They Can Raise Bail If Not The Rent

A San Francisco landlord recently shot two noisy tenants. Is this the National Association of Real Estate Boards' answer to the OPA?

Are tenants henceforth to be given lifetime leases, subject to cancellation at the landlord's will? Must apartment hotels adopt an iron-clad rule: Guests without insurance required to pay in advance?

Already more house-hunters are reading the obituary columns than the For Rent.

Liquidating the party of the second part is one way to break a lease, but "the Society For The Prevention of Cruelty to Tenants will hardly accept it as a permanent solution to the housing shortage.

Still, the nation may be in for a wave of this sort of home-icide unless congress passes a law to the effect that all vacancies created with malice aforethought go automatically to the victim's next-of-kin.

Blind Leadership

By RAYMOND MOLEY

MESSRS. GREEN and Murray and other representatives of labor unions have now had their say before Senator Taft's labor committee. It was a dismal show.

It was to be expected that labor would resist changes in the law. But these men went beyond mere resistance. They failed to indicate that they realize a labor problem exists. All we heard was talk about big profits. And the same old statistics were spread out in new forms.

It was suggested by one senator that the place to complain about profits is the senate finance committee. If profits are too large, they should be checked. But the Green-Murray formula seems to be to use immunity from proper legal restraints to transfer industrial profits to pay envelopes. Industrial profits are not a Wagner-Act problem.

Faulty Reasoning

The two labor moguls are indulging in the same fallacious reasoning which attended the original passage of the Wagner act. At that time, it was argued that, because over the years labor had been at a disadvantage, management should also be put at a disadvantage. Two wrongs do not make one right, even in legislation. The argument then about past inequities and the argument today about profits are extraneous to the issue. The issue is the shaping of a framework of law in which labor and management can bargain in an orderly way and on equal terms.

The protests of Senators Morse and Ives are significant evidences of how these tactics of labor leaders are losing for labor the sympathy of true friends.

Cites Lack of Cooperation

Senator Morse voiced his exasperation thus; "You people give us no help at all. Labor is overlooking the essence of the legislative process, which is compromise. We who look with sympathy at labor's aims must help work out this compromise.

"But if you think there is no overwhelming demand for legislation, you don't know the American people. We hope to get good legislation, but if it is a choice between no legislation and legislation that goes too far, I will have to vote for the latter."

Philip Murray flatly declared that he opposed every provision of every labor bill before the committee. When Morse asked Murray if he maintained that there were no labor abuses requiring legislation, Murray answered that he knew of no such abuses.

All he would admit was that jurisdictional strikes are undesirable. But he suggested, as did Green the day before, that the jurisdictional angle could be taken care of in the house of labor itself. The fact is, of course, that jurisdictional strikes have been going on for a long time, and labor has not succeeded in doing anything about them.

Almost Unprecedented

This united front against any cooperation, even with sympathetic legislation, has hardly a parallel in history. There were probably equally recalcitrant corporation executives when the interstate commerce act and the Sherman anti-trust act were planned. And we can remember the "let us alone" slogan in the day of Theodore Roosevelt.

But when the New Deal, in its early days, was attempting by legislation to correct evils in banking and in security selling, there were dozens of bankers, brokers and their lawyers in Washington whole-heartedly admitting abuses and willingly cooperating with those who were drawing up new legislation. I admit that some of the cooperators were not wholly unselfish. Most of them knew that legislation was inevitable, but they knew that if they would cooperate it would be less drastic.

Green and Murray, however, show no such acumen. They are not only selfish, but foolish. For legislation is going to be passed, and their refusal to help will make it more drastic.

Help Rebuild Warsaw

WARSAW, POLAND—The Polish government feels that German prisoners of war should be required to help rebuild what they destroyed during the war in this country, but apparently there is no intention to import any sizeable quantity of Germans here to work.

There are only 40,000 German war prisoners still in Poland. Five thousand are being used in the reconstruction of Warsaw. Five thousand are working on Polish farms, and 30,000 are employed in the mines. The Germans are housed in 10 separate camps.

U. S. Duty To World Growing

By WALTER LIPPMANN

"YOU should understand," said Secretary Marshall at Princeton, "the special position that the United States now occupies in the world * * * and the implications involved." Just before that he had said that he doubted "seriously whether a man can think with full wisdom and with deep convictions regarding certain of the basic international issues today who has not at least reviewed in his mind the period of the Peloponnesian war and the fall of Athens."

Athens was by ancient standards a democratic state. It was the leading commercial community, the dominant sea power, and the head and center of an empire created out of the Delian confederacy. The wars of the fifth century B. C., first against Persia—the great Asiatic power, and then against Sparta—the greatest militarist state—ended in the defeat and bankruptcy of Athens in 404, after her allies had left her, and when Sparata and Persia had become allies against her.

This is the period which Secretary Marshall asks us to review as we seek to understand the special position that the United States now occupies in the world.

As we review it, thinking as we are compelled to, of Athens as Great Britain, and the British commonwealth, and the British Empire—of Sparta as Germany and of Persia as Russia, the analogies are impressive. But the difference is as important as the resemblance. For in the tragic period of the Hellenic world, there was no other great power—as America is today—which inherited the same tradition, and was destined to redress the balance as the power of Athens declined.

Geographic Center

In that lies what Secretary Marshall called, "the special position that the United States now occupies in the world," and from that enormous fact, we must, "geographically, financially, militarily and scientifically," draw "the implications involved."

The North American continent is now the geographic center of the nations around the vast shores of the two oceans. It is the financial center of the free economies and of the principal undeveloped and backward regions of the earth. It is their chief arsenal and ultimate citadel. "Scientifically" it is the main center of technological development. The implications of this special position are not yet clear to any man. They could not be. For we have come to occupy this position so recently, so suddenly, so unexpectedly, and we have had so little time to realize it and to prepare for it.

It is, however, certain that there has developed upon the United States the role which Britain filled in the 18th century—that of bearing a heavy and leading, as Secretary Marshall put it, "responsibility for world peace and security." We shall have to learn to face up to this responsibility positively and not merely in its negative form of opposition and resistance to the expansion of Russia. For the expansion of Russia is due not so much to the inherent strength of the Soviet state nor to the spell of the Communist idea, but to the disintegration of ancient states and empires all around the periphery of the Soviet Union. It is not so much the power of Russia but the weakness, the disorder and the division in Europe, in the Middle East, in China, in India and elsewhere which create the opportunities, the pretexts and also substantial reasons for her intervention and her infiltration and her expansion.

The disintegration of the vast areas of the world where we are especially involved is becoming critical. We have to recognize the tremendous conclusion that our estimates and our plans for the postwar reconstruction were too optimistic, were calculated on an overestimate of the recuperative power of our allies and an underestimate of how profound were the ravages of the war.

Responsibility Growing

We have also had some very bad luck. The drought of last summer and the killing frost of the winter have been a natural calamity which the weakened organisms of Britain, of the European continent and indeed of Russia also, were in no condition to withstand.

What was always a big gamble on a very thin margin has become something that is approaching the dimensions of a catastrophe.

There is little chance, as many politicians fondly imagine, that we can devote ourselves single-mindedly to the agreeable task of reducing our expenses and our commitments and of increasing the money we have left over for our private use and enjoyment. The responsibility of the United States is not contract, as one might suppose by listening to Senator Taft. The responsibility of the United States is growing, is growing more rapidly heavier and greater than any of us supposed it would when the war ended.

Nor is there any escape from that responsibility. It is impossible to evade the consequences of history, and there is no way in which the United States can stand safely aside and mind its own internal business and enjoy its own blessings, while all about it the world sinks into disorder and squalor, and the violence of a desperate struggle for mere existence.

Women are supposed to tell everything t know every hour on the hour and be wh incapable of keeping a secret. They are s posed to be this way by—guess who—men. never let women forget that women aren't s posed to keep secrets.

The idea is that men, on the other hand, ne talk out of turn, which is so preposterous t women should pass a law about it. The b secret-keepers on earth are women. If t were to spill what they know about men, men would be laughed out of countenance.

Whenever there's any big-league secret-c covering to be done, as in war, men—who kn their own weakness—hire women to get ou men to tell everything they know. Mata H didn't do her eavesdropping in powder roo and hen parties. She talked to the boys.

When a man learns a secret he must tell som one about it right away. The trick is to k from telling some other man, which would m the thing would be all over town in 24 hou So the man who has been told a secret gall home to tell it to his wife instead. He knows can trust her.

As for her, she never tells him a thing that couldn't be put on the bulletin boa because that's where he'd put it.

It's a mystery what keeps alive this not that men are close-mouthed and women gabby. Who runs to the newspapers to spi sensational stuff—women? Not women, broth When women have something to spill, they to the lawyers and get paid to keep their mou shut.

DROP 3,100 NAMES FROM VOTING LIST

Removed for Failure to Cast Ballots in 2 Elections.

More than 3,100 persons have been dropped from Marion's eligible list because of failure to vote in an election during the last two years, the Marion county board of elections reported today.

Those persons dropped from the city's eligible voting list include those who have not voted in a primary, general or special election during the last two years, the board reported Cards have been mailed to each person, notifying him he must reregister by April 7 in order to be eligible to vote in the May 6 primaries

LIONS HEAR TALK ON CARE OF BLIND

State Welfare Department Aid on Program.

Guest speaker at the weekly Lions club luncheon meeting Monday at Hotel Harding was Mrs Esther Haupth, supervisor of physical restoration of the Vocational Rehabilitation Services for the Blind It is a division of the state department of public welfare.

Mrs. Haupth told of the development of the rehabilitation service for the blind in 1944, and explained that up to that time visual cases were cared for in a general way by the bureau of rehabilitation. This agency, she stated, is not to be confused with the aid for the blind. Persons are given eye examinations and physical examinations in their own locality, the results are sent to the state headquarters for review and if approved, the applicant for aid is further processed

Mrs. Haupth explained that the handicapped are trained to do jobs through an extensive training program and finally are placed by persons who analyze the possibility of using rehabilitated blind persons in industry The future project of the department is one of the prevention of blindness, Mrs Haupth explained, and commended the Lions club for the work they have done for the blind and urged them to further the work Mrs. Haupth was introduced by Ben T Wiant, program chairman for the month.

STATE LIQUOR BOARD RESUMES INQUIRY

By The Associated Press

CLEVELAND Feb 25—With a record of seven private club liquor licenses up for review and seven revoked in the opening day of hearings, the state board of liquor control resumed its sessions today at Lakeside avenue courthouse.

The four-man board yesterday listened grimly to testimony of shopping for charters, faked records, false information in permit applications and reports of inspections never made and wiped out the seven permits one by one with nods of their heads.

Charles G Schnur chief prosecutor for Attorney General Hugh S Jenkins gave an indication of more serious charges to come in his summary of testimony on the Cleveland Theatrical association permit.

"We have shown false statements in the application, said Schnur. Perhaps the permit was fraudulently obtained, which we hope to bring to the attention of other authorities as we go on."

LIQUOR

the wife of a distillery representative.

Rapidly, Sen Kyle Brooks (R-Hamilton) broke a momentary silence with a flood of questions.

The questions had no apparent connection with the testimony Tharp has given a minute before, but the committee did not again press for more information about the personnel director.

That passage silhouetted more neatly than anything which had gone before the sharp political cleavage within the hearing.

Cleavage May Backfire

That cleavage, however, remarked observers, might well backfire for scheduled to take the stand next Thursday was State Liquor Director Stanley B Cofall, a Republican appointee.

It is Cofall's appointment of Mrs. Harriet Michell, whom Tharp identified as the wife of Mike Michell a representative of Fleischmann's distilleries, which caused the hearing's hottest political activity.

During the flurry, Sen Margaret Mahony (D-Cuyahoga), the only Democrat on the committee, took a note or two.

Chairman Walcutt knit the flying questins into an adjournment with a forthright invitation. Said he,

"It would seem to me the number of men that has headed this appointment know the charges that have been made against it. They know the committee is sitting and it would not be amiss for them to just come in and clear up some of the things that have been said."

Hear Three Witnesses

Before that statement, the committee heard three witnesses. The thousands of words boiled down to these major statements.

Former State Liquor Director Robert M Sohngen had full responsibility for administration of the liquor department, including purchases, Tharp said. He carried on "other business" during his tenure working from "Tuesday through Thursday and sometimes Friday."

Tharp heard rumors his retail store employes were favoring customers and accepting bribes for distribution of scarce liquors but he could never collect evidence.

The state liquor department in the last months of the Gov. Frank J Lausche administration purchased enough cordials "to last 10 years."

Finds Old Lot

Tharp said he found 45 cases of cordials in the Manchester, O., store, which had been shipped in three years ago last summer.

Sales records showed, he said, the store sold in that time only two bottles of cordial.

He called the cordial purchases, which he said totaled 125,000 cases, unnecessary.

The state, he added, was loser by $1,160,000, but finally was free of Victoria brandy. Rebottled, the brandy sold at about 60 per cent of its original cost. The liquor was purchased during the administration of Gov. John W. Bricker, he said.

The state long had an "inequitable distribution" of bonded whiskies, Tharp averred. He said during both the Bricker and Lausche administrations the liquor department permitted certain distillers to name the permitters who were to get their brands of whisky.

Switching to personnel, Tharp criticized the low salaries paid liquor store employes and said the only qualification seemed "to be in right with the county chairman."

Although it was illegal under state rationing laws, Tharp said he understood that "any time a bunch of fair-haired boys came to town" they could buy cases of bonded liquor.

GAS USE CURBS TO LAST YEAR DISCLOSED

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O, Feb 25—A public utilities commission order authorizing the East Ohio Gas Co to refuse to give new service under certain conditions during the rest of this year was disclosed today.

The emergency PUCO order dated Feb 6 gave the company permission to:

1—Curtail service to industrial plants.

2—To refuse to supply gas for heating new buildings if the foundations were not under construction before Feb 1, effective until Dec. 31.

3—T refuse gas to new gas heating equipment intended to replace equipment burning other fuels, if the installation started on or after Jan 29, effective until Dec 31.

4—To refuse gas to new gas heating equipment intended to replace old gas heating equipment if the new uses more gas than the old.

PUCO officials said two other major suppliers, Ohio Fuel Gas Co and the Dayton Power and Light Co., had filed statements of their policies to conserve gas during this winter's critical shortage but had asked no order from the commission.

Under the East Ohio order, officials said, a prospective customer denied service under any of the four points may appeal to the commission if extraordinary circumstances are involved.

LABOR CURBS CALLED BLOW TO DEMOCRACY

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Feb. 25—David Dubinsky, president of the AFL Ladies' Garment Workers union told congress today that proposed changes in the labor laws would deal "a body blow to our democrasy."

In testimony prepared for the senate labor committee, Dubinsky went along with other union leaders in criticizing legislation to outlaw industry-wide bargaining and the closed shop.

He also denounced bills which would ban organizational strikes and regulate health and welfare funds.

Across the Capitol, Raymond S. Livingstone, vice president of Thompson Products, Inc., submitted a statement to the house labor committee declaring that the national labor relations board had "destroyed" two independent unions through "shocking perversions of justice."

Taft Serves Notice on Army, Navy $7,500,000,000 Is Top Budget.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Feb. 25—Senator Taft (R-Ohio), put the Army and Navy on notice today that while they may escape severe budget cuts this year the next congress session very likely would trim their combined funds to $7 500,000 000.

As the senate marked time before resuming limited debate tomorrow on a government spending ceiling goal, Taft told a reporter he believed the armed services ought to begin now to plan to taper off costs to a peacetime level.

Taft, who heads the senate Republican policy committee, said he regarded $7,500,000,000 as the top limit congress was likely to provide for military needs in the year beginning July 1, 1948.

That compares with $11,200 000,000 President Truman asked for the services in the $37,500 000,000 government budget he recommended for the year beginning next July 1.

How far congress will slash into that fund remained a question despite clear indications that the senate would approve a pledge to reduce the total outlay by $4 500,000 000. The house has voted a promise to cut $6,000,000 000, and Taft predicted the final economy promise would be around $5,000,000 000 or slightly higher.

BUFFALO TEACHERS VOW FINISH FIGHT

By The Associated Press

BUFFALO N Y Feb 25 — More than 2000 striking Buffalo school teachers, vowing a fight to the finish,' today awaited official reaction to their claim that the city is able to meet demands for a $1,025 annual pay raise now.'

The strikers, members of the Buffalo Federation of Teachers (independent) said they were confident that many of the 534 teachers who failed to participate, would join in as the walkout entered its second day.

The strike, largest of its kind in the history of the United States, yesterday closed all but 20 of the city's 98 public schools. School attendance was 9 796 out of an enrollment of 71,000.

School Superintendent Robert T Bapst said these schools would continue to function as long as possible with any of the 2,960 city teachers who want to work.

LEGISLATURE STUDIES 7 BONUS PROGRAMS

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O, Feb 25 — A house committee started study today on seven programs for veterans' bonuses and pensions as a group of ex-servicemen prepared to march on the statehouse.

Spokesmen for a veterans' group meeting in a downtown hotel said several hundred would move on the capitol in the afternoon to demand a low-cost housing program, and an improved GI bill of right in addition to bonuses.

The meeting was origified by the Collinwood veterans committee of Cleveland to inform legislators of veterans' wants, officials said.

A house military affairs subcommittee called up for hearing five plans to pay from $600,000,000 to $300,000,000 in veterans' bonuses, and two other proposals to establish funds for immediate loans and pensions after age 60 to Ohio service personnel.

VET LOBBYISTS LEAVE FOR CAPITAL MARCH

CLEVELAND, Feb. 25—Traveling in chartered buses and private cars, 250 Cleveland war veterans left for Columbus today to push demands for low-cost housing, an improved GI bill of rights and a veterans bonus.

John Brennan, chairman of the delegation, said they would be joined by several hundred other Ohio veterans in Columbus for an Ohio state veteran conference designed to get "quick action" for ex-servicemen.

He said the group was opposed to any bonus that would increase sales or real estate taxes.

"What is wanted is a bonus financed by taxing corporate profit and higher incomes," Brennan added.

SCRAP METAL SHORTAGE THREAT TO PLANTS HERE

Situation More Critical Than Box Car Shortage

A current shortage of scrap metal with little relief in sight is a serious threat to many Marion industries, it was brought out in a meeting of the manufacturing council of the Marion Chamber of Commerce Monday noon in Hotel Harding.

The discussion was led by Edgar Rathbert acting chairman of the group. Local manufacturers pointed out that scrap metal was becoming increasing difficult to obtain and offered a greater threat to local plant operations than the railway box car shortage, effecting many plants throughout the nation.

Because most Marion industries use flat cars due to the nature of their products the box car shortage here has not yet become critical in most local industries. Local grain and milling companies, however, are experiencing difficulty in obtaining sufficient box cars to handle their outgoing shipments.

Taft Gives School Reporters Candid Answers in Parley

By The Associated Press

CLEVELAND, Feb 25—Senator R Taft (R-Ohio) came up with some candid answers today as 32 representatives of Cleveland's high school newspapers interviewed him at breakfast.

The youngsters offered some searching questions, and on only one did the senior senator from Ohio refuse to take off the record answer.

Asked what he would like to see as a result of the atomic energy commission in preference to David Lilienthal, Senator Taft answered:

"I'll tell you, but it's off the record. I don't want to be placed in the position of suggesting some one he does not think the President certainly would not care to appoint him."

Senator Taft then named, not for publication, his two choices. One is a high-ranking army officer the other an ex-senator.

Then the interview went something like this:

Q—Senator Langer suggested yesterday that President Truman handle negotiations with Russia directly. Do you agree?

A—I would think not, except in the most extraordinary circumstances. But as a Frenchman said some directions are never true, not even this one.

Q—Do you approve of socialized medicine?

A—I am opposed. Such matters should be left to the states with federal assistance and stimulus.

RECOVERIES CROP UP IN STOCK MARKET

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, Feb 25—Recoveries cropped up in parts of today's stock market although many leaders still were restrained by light selling.

Dealings quickened at intervals after a fairly active opening but slowdowns were plentiful. Aside from a few wide jumpers, fractional irregularity prevailed near the fourth hour.

Norfolk and Western, an exceptionally "thin" stock, provided the fireworks of the session by climbing about 18 points in the wake of a 4-for-1 splitup proposal.

Supported were U S Steel, Bethlehem, General Motors, Sears Roebuck, International Harvester, Kennecott, Anaconda, American Can, General Electric, Du Pont and Armour.

BUCYRUS MAN HELD TO JURY AT KENTON

Shark Returned to Jail in Lieu of $5,000 Bond.

Special to The Star

KENTON Feb 25 — Edward Shark, Bucyrus cattle buyer held here on a questionable check charge, was bound over to the Hardin county grand jury this morning on $5,000 bond when arraigned in the court of Justice of the Peace Worley Smith.

He pleaded not guilty to a charge of issuing a check amounting to $4,399 to the Kenton Farmers Marketing Corp without funds and waived preliminary hearing through his attorney, Ray W. Roof.

He failed to furnish bond and was committed again to the Hardin county jail.

Hardin county Sheriff Randall Clark said he holds a detainer issued by Indiana state police at Pendleton, Ind., to hold Shark for authorities there should he be released on charges here.

The Kenton charge involves a check issued for $4,399 in Kenton. The check issued in Indiana is for $2 420 72.

Shark gave himself up to the Crawford county sheriff Saturday morning after he had been sought for three weeks.

CONSERVATION PLAN TERMED TOO SLOW

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, Feb 25—E C McArthur, of Gaffney S C., said today that "we are not moving fast enough" in soil conservation and that there must be "a common battle front across the nation" to meet the problem.

McArthur, president of the National Association of Soil Conservation district governing officials, said in a prepared address to the association's meeting, that "until now, the farmer and rancher supervisors of each of the 1,730 soil conservation districts have been fighting more or less a system of guerrilla warfare. Each district has been operating independently."

Reviewing the soil conservation work of recent years McArthur said "I know of no other agricultural movement which has advanced as rapidly x x x Yet, we are not moving fast enough. At maximum high flood stages, the Mississippi river every minute carries past Vicksburg, Miss., the soil equivalent to a 40 acre farm.

"We are here to complete a national organization of soil conservation district supervisors so that we can have a common battle front across the nation. Such an organization will enable us to help each other to do an even better job."

In another prepared address, William A Benitt of Hastings, Minn., president of the Minnesota Soil Conservation association, said "we have a little land in this country which can be irrigated. We have some that is worth draining. We can rebuild some of the eroded land. But once land is really gone, it takes centuries to rebuild it."

PASQUEL BECOMES OWN TALENT SCOUT

Serves Notice He'll Raid All But Cardinal Club.

By The Associated Press

HAVANA, Feb. 25 — Senor Jorge Pasquel, the Mexican baseball magnate, has become his own personal major league talent scout.

The senor, who has issued a blanket warning to major league owners that he intends to raid all of them except the St. Louis Cardinals, last night personally addressed himself to "Dem Bums"—the Brooklyn Dodgers of the National league.

Strolling into the Hotel National, Dodgers headquarters, he announced to a group of players in the lobby.

"If you fellows are not satisfied with contract, come see me, Jorge Pasquel. I will sign players from any club except Sammy Breadon5s. He's my friend."

Dixie Walker, recognizing the Mexican league president, said in jest, "Why, you scouted me last year and turned me down because I am too old."

"No, no," replied Pasquel. "We want you. What position do you play?"

Pasquel is here to attempt to put down rebellion among Cuban winter league players who performed on Mexican diamonds last year.

When one of the players shouted "Your league is on the rocks," Pasquel countered:

"Propaganda. My league is five times stronger. I will put up four million dollars to anybody's two million dollars that we go through a complete season this year.

"It is true we were disappointed in American players who came to our league last year. Many of our Mexican players were better than they were."

Pirates Eager Beavers As Herman Sees Better Club

By The Associated Press

MIAMI BEACH, Feb. 25—Baseball players love to be near big money, on the time-honored theory that some of it might rub off on them, and the difference an influx of fresh, vulgar cabbage has made on the personnel of the strife-torn Pittsburgh Pirates of last season is one of the phenomena of the new training season.

Anxious to be seen about happily shedding their excess poundage, a half-dozen bulky Pirates showed up here a full week before they had been ordered to report.

Their strange conduct is typical of the new Pittsburgh spirit. It is a "hot" training camp, with everybody from the new manager, Billy Herman, down to the rawest rookie obviously aware that he is with a club on the upgrade. The news that Hank Greenberg has signed put added spring in every one's step.

Herman, with the caution befitting a fledgling pilot, is limiting himself to the prediction that the Pirates "will be a lot better than last year," when they finished a bedraggled seventh. But other members of the official family are a great deal more optimistic than that.

"Give us a couple of 'sleepers' and we'll be right up there," declares the club's new president, Frank McKinney. "I mean, if one of our pitchers, like Ernie Bonham, should come through big, and we should find a heavy-hitting center fielder, we could make it tough for all of them."

As it is, the Pirates can field an array of right-hand hitters calculated to send chills down the spines of the league's southpaw pitchers.

Greenberg, who led the American league in homers last year, and young Ralph Kiner, who as a freshman last season paced the National league with 23 round trippers, represent a potential one-two punch that could do a lot of damage.

Harding High School Booster Club Gets Official Launching

By GEORGE ROEST

The Harding High school Bosters' club was officially launched last night at a dinner meeting in the Y. M. C. A. with 70 persons attending.

Dr. R. L. Morgan presided and announced objectives of the club were agreed to by all present.

It will be composed of local businessmen and its aim is to help better Harding athletics. This will be done by aiding, upon recommendation of the high school athletic council, athletes worthy and needful of assistance. The club plans to promote good relations between the school and the public.

Won't Interfere wit School

Dr Morgan stressed in his opening remarks that the club would not attempt to direct the school's athletic program but would act to boost projects which are approved by school officials.

Necessary details of organization were also formulated. It was decided that a governing body would consist of seven members including the president, vice president, and secretary-treasurer.

Officers for 1947 were suggested and approved. They are John Pickerel, president; Robert LaMarche, vice president, and Jack Danner, secretary-treasurer. It was agreed that the other four members of the governing body be chosen by these men for this year but in the future the by-laws, which are to be drawn up by attorneys Don Williamson and Don Reid, will provide a method of election of the governing body.

Explains Reserve Seat Plan

A. C. May, Harding principal, explained the suggestion that a section of Harding stadium consist of reserve seats. He said that the middle section would seat 385 persons and that number should be set aside if such a plan was to be successful.

Other projects suggested for the organization to back when it comes more fully organized are the erection of a stadium on the east side of the practice field, backing of the city's plans for a new gymnasium in the near future.

Dues for the club were set at $5 and memberships can be obtained from Jack Danner by contacting one of the club officers. Danner stressed that memberships can be secured through the mail.

O.S.U. To Honor Tony Aquila, Groundkeeper for 40 Years

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., Feb. 25—Forty years ago, come March, a squat little Italian named Tony Aquila took a $40 a month laboring job on Ohio State university's campus.

Tonight, as he heads into the stretch of four decades of service—during which he has seen 10 football coaches come and go—a few hundred of his untold thousands of friends will pay tribute to him at a testimonial dinner.

Only the size of the Neil House dining room will limit the number of admirers paying personal honor to the 71-year-old groundkeeper who down through the years has nurtured the turf over which Buckeye teams surged to Western conference and national championships, and stars tip-toed their way into All-American recognition.

Thousands of tales are told of Tony, and they'll be rehashed tonight. Toastmaster Ed Penisten of Ross county, the mid-west's No. 1 yarn spinner, and President Bill Veeck of the Cleveland Indians, principal speaker, will set the pace. But old friends of Tony will have their say, too, among them retiring athletic director St. John, and George M. Trautman, president of the National Association of Professional Baseball clubs.

Trautman may recall the day back in the 'teens, when he was assigned by Tony to paint some benches. As the day ended, Tony sought out freshman Trautman and asked in the broken English which still marks his speech.

"How you coma long with da benches, boy?"

And red-haired George answered:

"Fine. We won the game 3 to 2."

Tony was undisturbed by the fact his new helper had spent the afternoon pitching a scrub baseball game. The following year Trautman was the varsity pitcher, with Senator John W. Bricker as his catcher.

Years later, Trautman may recall, he was in charge of the 1926 National Open golf arrangements at Scioto Country club, and he hired Tony to construct bleachers around the 18th green. Tony was a magician when it came to erecting bleachers in a hurry.

Tony, whose knowledge of golf was limited, constructed the bleachers, but had them in the wrong place and facing the wrong way. He had to do the job all over again, which led to a statement which he has repeated down through the years, the statement:

"I no like golf!"

One day, in the Twinkling Twenties, a stray dog appeared at Tony's tool shed and refused to leave. It followed Tony everywhere, and finally he allowed it to stay. Always a man of few words, and short ones at that, Tony named the dog "Him." The name stuck, so far as Tony was concerned, even after "Him" became the mother of quadruplets under the yawning arches of the stadium.

Tony will tell you that he likes all the athletes who bejeweled the campus in his 40 years, but when pinned down he'll admit that his biggest favorite was Chic Harley. He named one of his sons after Harley, and one after Bobby Wattes, another grid star. Another son was christened "Navy" in memory of an Ohio-Navy football game, and his only daughter was named for a former university registrar.

That's how closely Tony's life has been twined with the growth of the university — and tonight his friends will try to show him how glad they are that such was true, and how sorry they are he's retiring in June.

Cars driven by Claude R. Miller, 51, of 990 East Center street and D. W. Yokam of 230 Edward street collided at Olney and West Church streets at 5:10 p. m.

FISCAL FEVER HITS ASSEMBLY

Ohio Representatives Ready To Fight State Senate on Income Estimate.

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., Feb. 25 — Fiscal fever broke out anew in the Ohio legislature yesterday.

Representatives heatedly demonstrated they would resist attempts to revise their declaration that appropriations must be within a $422,000,000 estimate of 1947-48 income.

Rep. James J. Barton (R-Cuyahoga) asked creation of a committee to reconcile differences between house and senate income estimates and report by March 17, about the time Gov. Thomas J. Herbert's budget is due.

The house, instead, voted 78-16 to send Barton's proposal to the reference committee last night where it may be stymied.

Barton's request stemmed from a deadlock between the house and an estimate by Sen. Albert L. Daniels (R-Highland), senate finance committee head, that state income would aggregate $488,000,000, leaving more for "extras."

Answering Herbert's plea for prompt action on three key measures, the house took up today a bill to make permanent the two-cents-a-package cigaret tax which expires March 31.

Early Vote Expected

A vote this week was looked for on the expiring .65 utility excise tax which would permit its use for other welfare work besides poor relief and possibly on extension of the cent-a-gallon liquid fuel levy.

Herbert said the three levies, which produce about $32,000,000 a year, were necessary to keep the state on a pay-as-you-go basis to which the Republican house majority is pledged.

Legislative and administration leaders were entertained at dinner in the governor's mansion last night but guests said business was put aside.

The house last night passed unanimously and sent to the senate a proposal by Rep. Fred A. Hunt (R-Lucas) to conform Ohio's insurance laws to those of other states.

Increases Cash Surrender Value

Hunt said the bill prescribed methods for increasing the cash surrender value of policies and for use of up-to-date mortality tables instead of those based on data prior to 1865.

The senate received a new veterans' bonus-loan plan calling for a $350,000,000 fund created by an extra one-cent sales tax. Offered by Sen. George C. Shirtz (R-Coshocton), it was the 11th proposal to aid veterans financially to come before the legislature.

He proposed issuance of certificates to veterans worth $10 for each month of domestic service and $15 for foreign duty, which could be cashed after 18 years. Loans up to $1,000 could be obtained before that time, subject to certain restrictions.

Programs on the Air

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, Feb. 25—All four networks are setting aside Friday as "Red Cross Day," as a feature toward the opening of the 1947 campaign. It is the plan to have each program participate either through special announcements or with guest speakers.

A highlight is to be a five-minute appeal by President Truman at 10 p. m., with the regular schedule delayed that length of time.

In addition, the ABC Theater Guild in broadcasting from Washington on Sunday night is to join in the appeal, with Sec. of State George C. Marshall, Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower and others as speakers. The drama, "What Every Woman Knows," will have Helen Hayes in the lead.

All times given are Eastern Standard Time. Erroneous listings, if any, are caused by last-minute changes made by stations and networks.

LOVE'S PERILOUS PATH

By ADELE GARRISON

"MARY!" I exclaimed, and knew that Dicky was as amazed as I was at this appearance of his lovely, willful niece, even if her hectic telegram had prepared us in part for her arrival. 'How did you get here so quickly?"

"You didn't get my wire then?" she asked "Well, I didn't much think you would. You see I left it for the Western Union to send on a night letter after I took the plane yesterday. I didn't want to get you all steamed up too long beforehand, but I thought it might be as well to cushion the shock of my landing a trifle"

Laughing Eyes

"Very considerate of you, Brat," her uncle told her, and her laughing eyes narrowed a bit as they shot a quick look at him

"You don't quite approve of your little niece, Mary?" she asked "When I've come all this way just because I couldn't exist without my old uncle any longer"

He gave her a cool appraising glance, but a grin was twitching the corners of his lips

"You probably have good and sufficient reasons for this sudden change in your plans, Brat—although I doubt it—" he said, "but a yen for my company, much as we love each other, isn't one of them So come clean"

"Why, there's my wire, now!" Her sharp eyes spied the telegram on the floor where I had dropped it when I rushed to the door at her knock. "You meanies! You did get it after all, and never told me!"

"We haven't had the chance," her uncle said patiently "But don't use it as camouflage I'm still waiting to hear the real reason for your coming home."

Tears in Eyes

But to my horror, and I knew to Dicky's also, I had seen tears spring to her eyes—Mary, whose proud boast it is that she can mask or simulate any emotion—and it was given me to know in that instant that the tears were genuine and not a ruse to put Dicky off

I swept her into my arms, and sent a withering look over her shoulder at my husband

"Go away!" I told him "Back to your homework, or clean your studio. But don't come in here again until I telephone you to come back"

"Yes'm." Dicky said, in the manner of a small boy being rebuked. "I'm sorry, Brat. I didn't mean—"

I made a swishing movement with my hand behind Mary's back, for I saw that the tears were ready to overflow now, and Dicky hurriedly departed. Then, swiftly I took off her hat, traveling cloak and gloves, tossed them after her purse on the nearest chair, and drew her to a seat on the couch beside me.

"Now," I said, with my arms tightly around her, "cry it all out here."

Wipes Her Eyes

But unexpectedly — I rarely have known Mary to do the thing one looks for from her — she straightened herself, and wiped her eyes.

"Once more you've saved my life and reason, you wonderful Auntie Madge," she said extravagantly. I reflected that her long illness had not changed her volatile temperament in the least—and rejoiced, for change in our imperious, temperamental, lovable darling would be a tragedy

"If Uncle Dicky had stayed in the room another eighth of a second, I would have been blubbering all over the lot, and they wouldn't have been crocodile tears either. But I've been so crazy to get home—and then to have him ask me why I came—the best of men haven't any tact—"

"When they're worried," I interrupted serenely with the experience of many years behind me "I've known your uncle to be so worried about some accident of mine that he was positively shaking with anxiety, and yet at the same instant he was fiercely scolding me for having been in the way of whatever happened"

Musical Laugh

Mary's musical laugh rang out, and I knew that the tears were behind her

"Let me look at you," I said, pulling her to her feet and holding her out at arms' length "Why, dearest, you look wonderful You're several pounds heavier," she grimaced and I added sternly, "vitally needed pounds Your color is splendid, your eyes are clear. If I'm any judge, you're in marvelous condition"

But even as I spoke, I remembered those involuntary tears. Were her nerves in as good shape as her body? I wondered.

"Try to tell the sanitarium MD's that," she said 'But I told 'em I gave them three or four earsful before I left yesterday"
